

Filter Your Online Event Calendar

Last Modified on 07/06/2022 5:18 pm EDT

We recommend you review the Link to Your Online Event article before moving forward with these additional filter options for your online Event Calendar.

The online Event Calendar shows your customers, at a glance, what events are happening at your site. It can be added to your website using the External Event Calendar Link. You can use additional HTML (code) to filter your calendar and display different information. The default settings for calendar codes are Status = Open, Unavailable, and Notice.

- ★ If you want an Event Calendar to display a different Status, you can do that.
- ★ If you have multiple Business Locations, you may want to show a separate calendar for each Location - you can do that too!
- ★ If you have several different Category 1's (Cat1) for different Event Types, you can also show a calendar for each one separately.

This is called filtering. The additional code provided below tells Jackrabbit to display only the events with a certain Status, Location, Cat1, or Event Type.

The examples below show the code that must be added at the end of the External Event Calendar Link after the OrgID to limit the items shown on your calendar.

When you filter the calendar for an Event Type, you can only use ONE Event Type at a time. However, the Cat1 and Loc filters can be combined into the same code.
