Issue/Question

Can I customize the columns of information that are included in a Jackrabbit grid?

Resolution

Grids in Jackrabbit organize data into rows and columns. Most grids hide some columns by default, but you can easily show or hide them to display the information you need.

1. From the grid, click on the Edit Column Settings icon (three vertical dots) in any of the column headers.
2. Choose the Columns option to display the list of available columns of information.
3. Select (to show) or clear (to hide) the checkboxes to customize the columns to be included in the grid.

The grid will refresh to include only the selected columns.
